Helvetica Neue 55 Roman

Helvetica Neue 75 Bold

Hello Hello Hello

~~Hello~~ ~~Hello~~ ~~Hello~~ ~~Hello~~ ~~Hello~~

~~Hello~~ ~~Hello~~ ~~Hello~~ ~~Hello~~ ~~Hello~~

Our typeface is Helvetica Neue.

Three key principles
Use 75 Bold for headlines, sub-headings and “hero” text.
Use 55 Roman for body copy.

We follow standard local punctuation rules:
an uppercase letter should be used at the beginning of a sentence or bullet point.
For offers, services and entities the uppercase letter should be placed at the beginning of each word, for example:
Open Jet
Cloud Pro
Global Brand.

Use black, white or orange for text.
Never use supporting colours.

Our colours

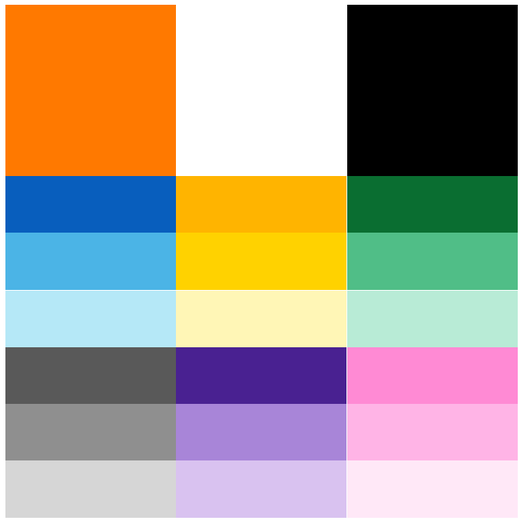

We are a black, white and orange brand - this is our core colour palette and is at the heart of everything we do. We also have a supporting colour palette to keep the brand fresh.

Whether you're creating a single illustration, a catalogue or branding an environment, always aim to use a mix of core and supporting colours. We use a minimum of 80% core colour and a maximum of 20% supporting colour to maintain brand attribution. The core colour proportions must include a minimum of 30% orange, used as a hero highlight colour.

For specific guidance on colour usage, please visit the brand site.

Our secondary colours should not be associated with a specific subject, such as blue for all business content or yellow for fun. Our supporting colours as well as orange should not be used dominantly on a medium. We use black and white typography on any of our supporting colours (except white on yellow) and black, white and orange on a black or white background. Only two supporting colours can be associated in a setting, in addition to black, white and orange. Each setting should contain at least one of our core colours, as well as orange.

Illustrations

Three key principles

Our illustrations are bold and straightforward with an obvious focus and minimal detail.

Our illustrations are simple shapes and solid colour.

Our illustrations are contemporary and respect our colour balance in terms of our core and supporting palette (see page 6).

Supporting colour palette

To give illustrations shadows and highlights we have an additional set of light and dark tints.
They are fixed and only for use in illustrations.

Never use tints without their accompanying supporting colour, and never use tints (including skin tone tints) for backgrounds.

Application principles

Typeface setting in tiles

Three key principles
Tiles always adapt to text length. Text should be horizontally and vertically centred within the tiles.

The clear space around the text equals the letter “o” in the same size in width and 2/3 of the letter “o” in height.

“Orange presents”

“Orange presents” only appears at the beginning of a video for external use. It is used on black or white backgrounds or on the very first images of the programme. Different colours are available in QuickTime HD (including Alpha) format.

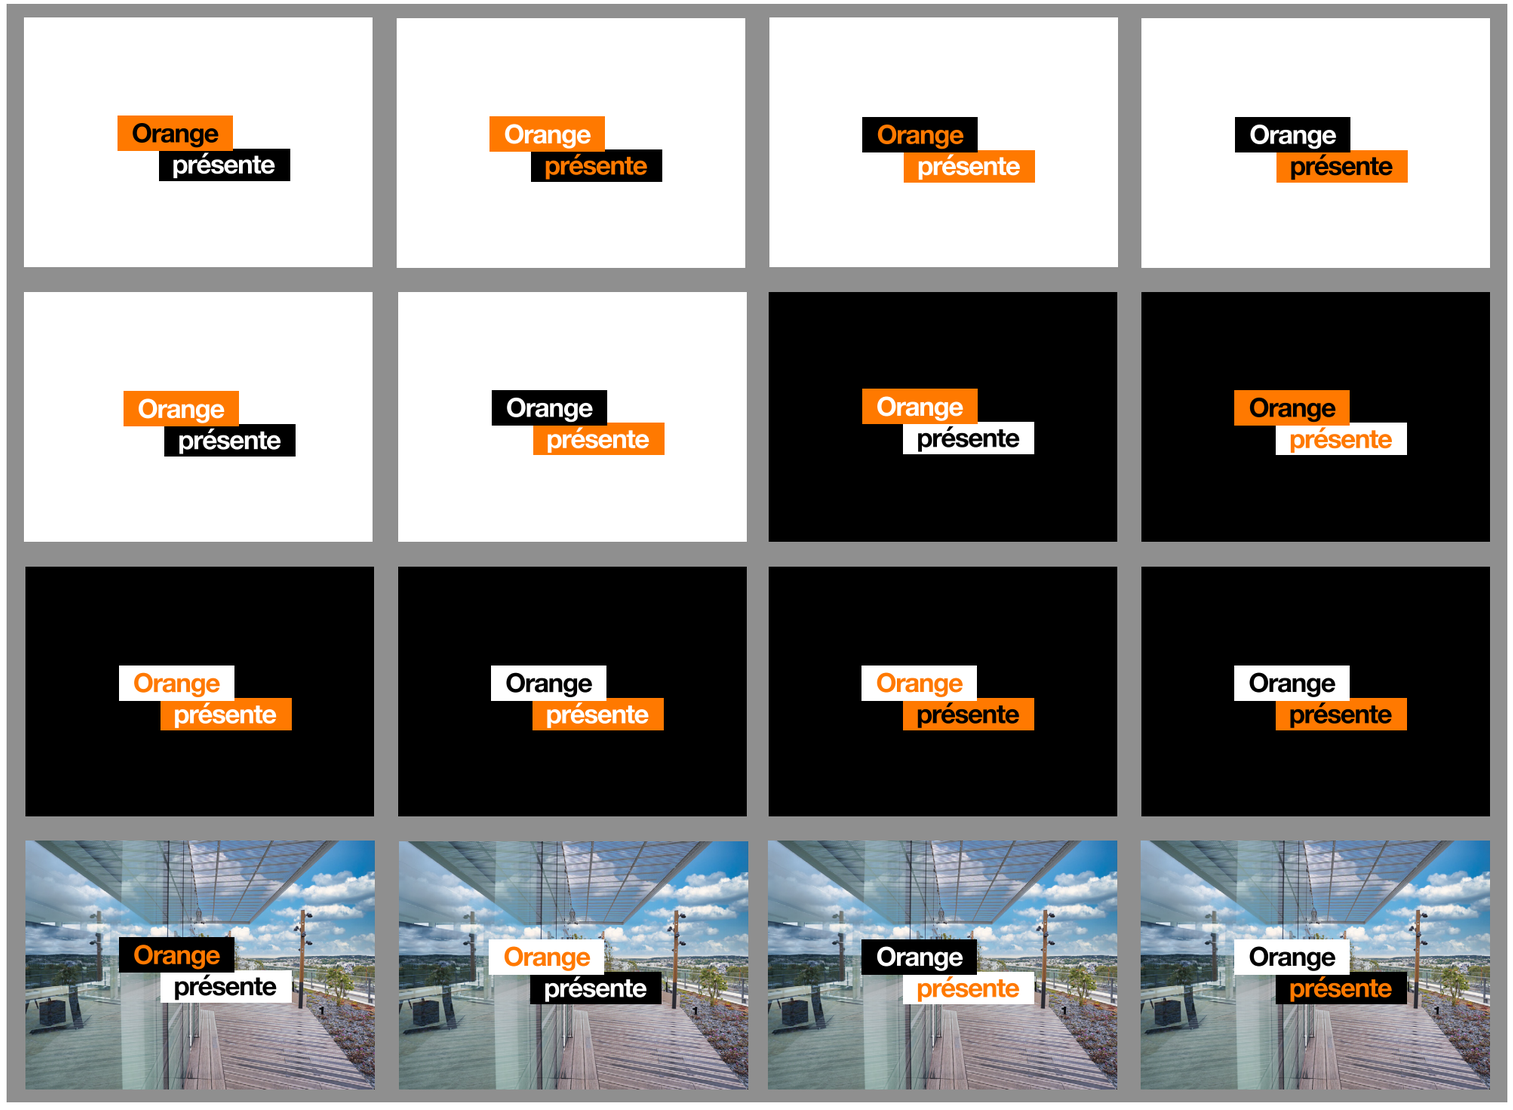

Three key principles

Tiles always adapt to text length.

Text should be horizontally and vertically centred within the tile.

“Orange” should always appear white or orange in a black, white or orange tile.

“Orange presents”

Possible combinaisons in situation.

“Orange presents”

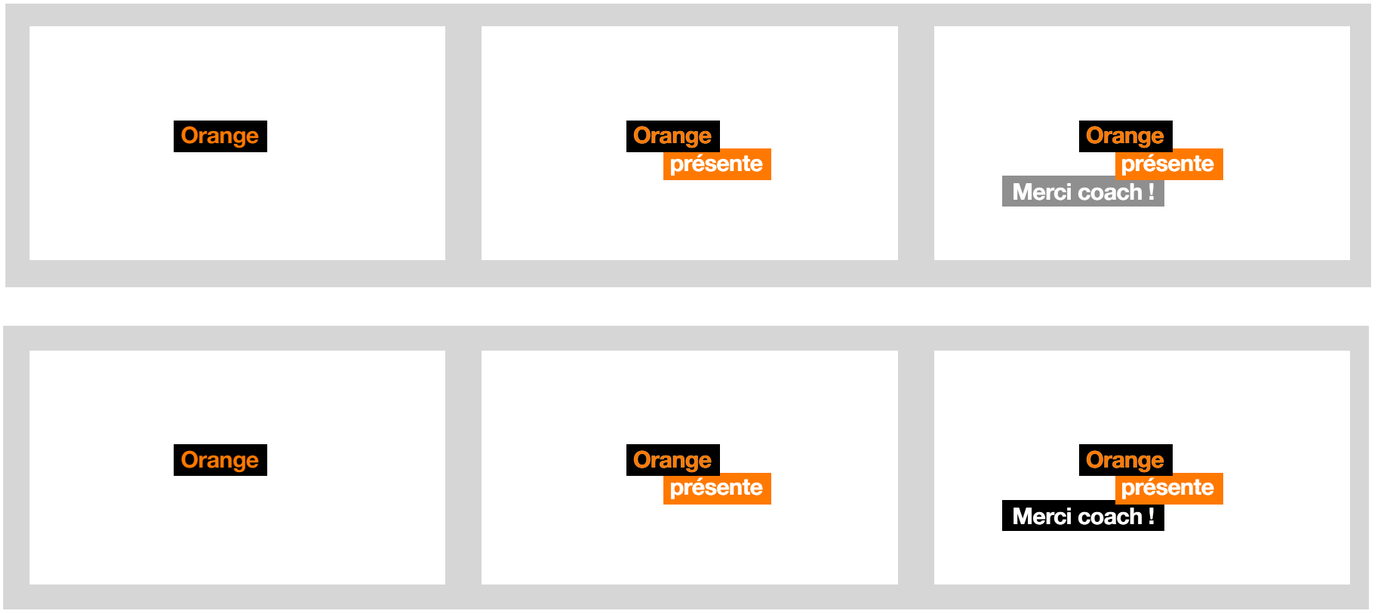

In: the “Orange” tile fades in (8i) and so does the text (4i starting from the 5th image of the tile fading).

The “presents” tile appears cut with its text right under the “Orange” tile and takes place in 4i.

Out: cut when the shot shifts or fade out in 8i.

“Orange presents” + programme title

A coloured tile should be used to receive the programme title (colour should be different from the one used in the “presents” tile).

Motion follows the same rules as the “presents” title.

Programme title

When intended for internal use “Orange presents” should not be used.

Name and function

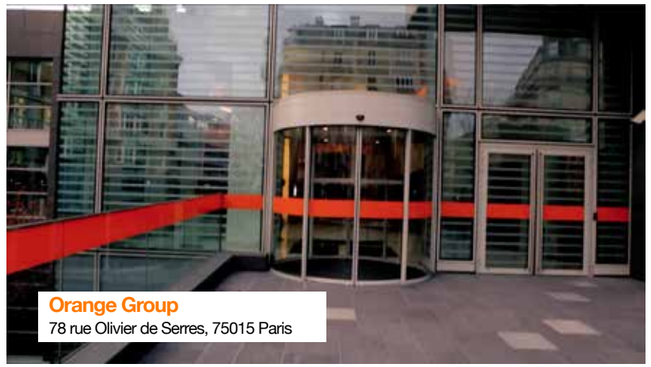

The name should be written in 75 Bold and function in 55 Roman.

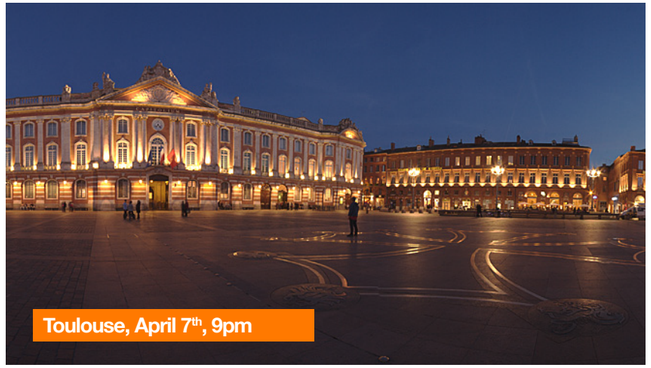

The name tile and he function tileshould always must be black, white or orange. The motion follows the same rules as “Orange presents”.

Place, date...

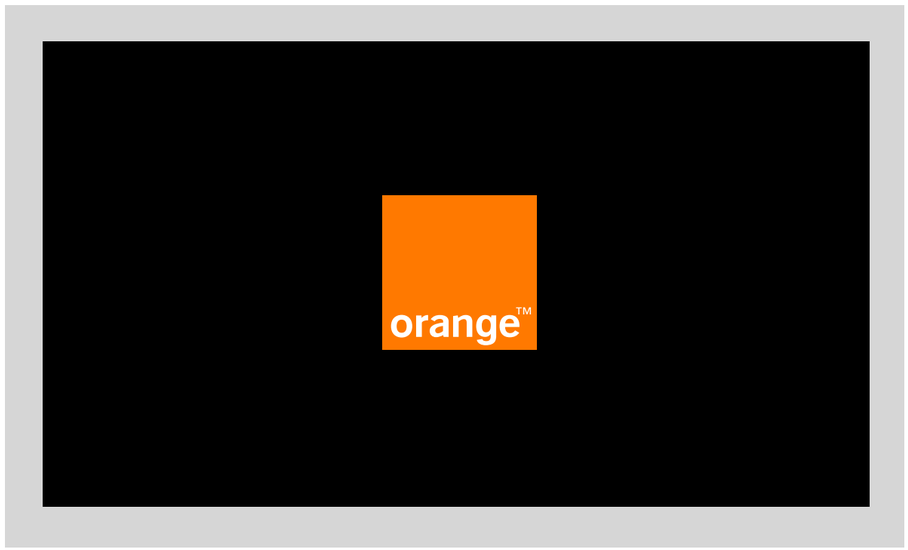

The name of the place should be written in 75 Bold. Complementary information should be in 55 Roman.

The tile should always be black, white or orange. Motion follows the same rules as “Orange presents”.

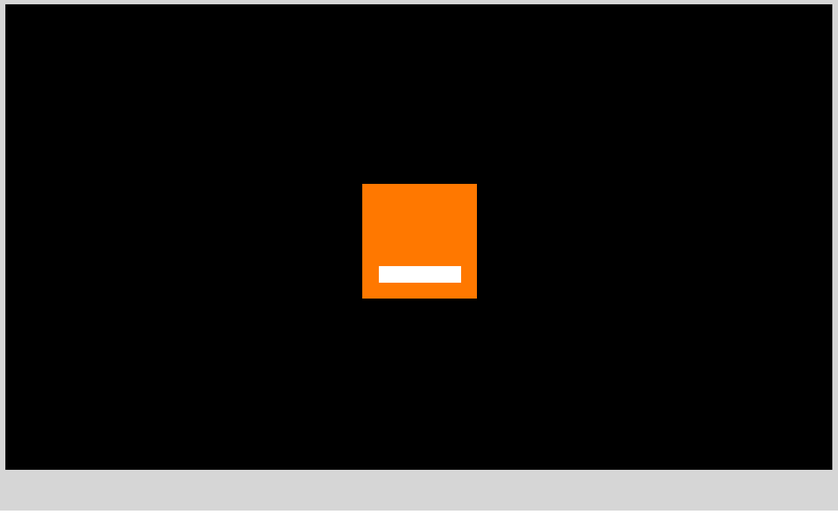

End frame (packshot)

On black background the Orange logo fades in and out in 10i. Size equals 1/3 of the screen height, e. g. 360px for Full HD.

It is available in QuickTime HD format.

Packshot avec small logo

On black background the Orange logo fades in and out in 10i.

Le Small logo is used when the size of the Master logo appears less than 50px on desktops or tablet screens on social media.

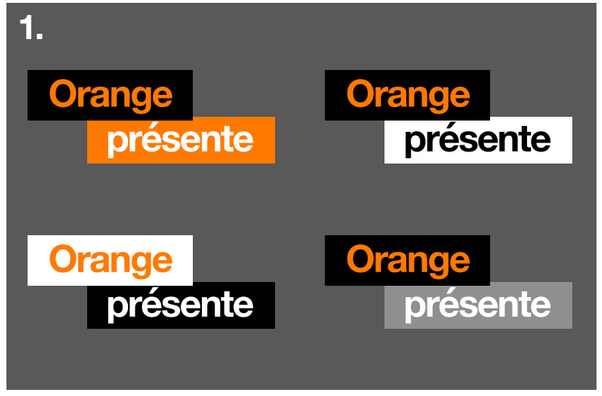

It’s possible to animate the Small logo; however this process is strictly managed by the Global brand team.

Should you require animation, please send your brief to christian.bony@orange.com
